

Home or Transition?

The Great Lakes Center for Autism Treatment and Research (GLC) Intensive Residential Treatment Program is designed to help adolescents whose challenging behavior prevents them from being safe in the home and community. While in the program, adolescents take part in intensive behavioral treatment but how the treatment is continued when the individual graduates from the program is just as important as the treatment itself. The individual's success is based on the caregiver's extensive training on their treatment plan, clinical oversight by Behavior Analysts, and close coordination with the educational system. For some individuals, this level of support is not available, or other barriers exist that prevent them from returning home; to meet these needs, the Elaine Avenue Program was created.

Transition

When an individual graduates from Great Lakes Center for Autism Treatment and Research (GLC) Intensive Residential Treatment Program, and if returning home is not an immediate option, the Elaine Avenue Program offers a transition.

GLC is opening the Elaine Avenue Program in the winter of 2019. This step-down program can serve up to six individuals who have successfully met their treatment plan goals during their stay at GLC. The Elaine Avenue Program allows an individual to experience an environment that closely resembles a typical family home setting, and helps them build upon their existing skills.

The individual living at Elaine Avenue can participate in a variety of activities just like any person learning to be more independent, like: doing homework or crafts while a meal is being prepared, learning how to wait their turn, getting ready for school, waiting for the bus, collecting items from the mailbox, running errands, working on other life skills or relaxing in the living room with their housemates. Each of these daily events can pose unique challenges. However, with the guidance and support of the (24/7) clinical team, the skills acquired in the Intensive Residential Treatment Program, combined with this daily practice will help to prepare these individuals to succeed when they return home or to their adult home placement.

Going Home

Some individuals may return home and others may need an adult home placement. Residential Opportunities, Inc. (ROI) provides licensed group homes for adults with developmental and intellectual disabilities. Adults receiving services live in beautiful home settings, in safe neighborhoods, where they can enjoy the community, receive assistance with day-to-day needs, and build relationships with their peers. Whether we are coordinating medical appointments, teaching an individual new skills, or providing transportation to a sporting event, we are here to serve.

The typical individual we serve is someone who needs 24-hour staffing support, and benefits from the structure and personal support that a licensed setting provides. To learn more please ask an ROI or GLC team member.

Elaine Avenue Program Provides:

- A community based home for teenagers with developmental disabilities
- Increased opportunities to gain valuable life skills
- Individualized treatment plans
- Professional staff to guide and support an individual's success
- Expanded opportunities for caregiver training
- A supportive environment that partners with individuals and families affected by autism, to improve their quality-of-life through effective and efficient diagnosis, assessment, and behaviorally-based treatments.

The Great Lakes Center for Autism Treatment and Research is a program of Residential Opportunities, Inc., a non-profit mental health organization that provides support services for individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities. We believe in helping the children and adolescents we serve reach their full potential in their community. At ROI, we offer a unique person and family-centered philosophy that creates a strong connection with the community for the individuals we serve. Driven by our Core Values, we place the needs of the individuals we serve as our highest priority.
